How the ratings work:

STC & OITC are rating systems used to measure sound reduction. STC is used to rate sound traveling through an interior wall, and OITC is used to rate sound traveling through an exterior wall.

Higher STC/OITC ratings represent more efficient sound reduction through a surface. The STC rating of a typical wall without windows is 36.

Lang's Products have produced the results in the chart to the left when tested for STC and OITC ratings.

Bring privacy to your home

Silence is Golden was developed by Lang to bring a peaceful atmosphere that could enable even the most sensitive sleeper to be at peace. With this upgrade (available on all Lang products listed to the left) you will find that even the most annoying exterior noises will be significantly reduced. With these new glass innovations from Lang Exterior now you can Sleep Like a Baby with your new Lang Windows.

Lower decibel levels

When exterior noise levels are 70dBA or less, these windows and doors would provide adequate sound attenuation so that the interior sound levels do not exceed 45dBA.
